Jews Barred From Streets

BERLIN (JTA)—Orders forbid- [illegible] Jews to appear on the street [illegible] on Sunday were issued by a num- [illegible] of towns in the Gunzenhausen [illegible] district.

The orders prohibit Jews from [illegible] entering public institutions, drive [illegible] autos in the towns, acquire a lease [illegible] on real estate, or even visit the [illegible] cemeteries.

Designed to force the Jews to [illegible] leave the community, these orders [illegible] deprive them of all municipal priv- [illegible] leges save the duty to pay taxes. [illegible] "Aryans," however are warned [illegible] against molesting Jews on Satur- [illegible] days. Glass Head Of Zionists

Cantor Myro Glass was reelected [illegible] president of the Indianapolis Zion- [illegible] ist District Monday night in Beth [illegible] El Zedeck Temple, at the first [illegible] meeting of the new year.

Other officers elected were, first [illegible] vice president, Rabbi Elias Charry; [illegible] second vice president, Phil Green- [illegible] wald; secretary, Meyer Gallia; [illegible] treasurer, Jacob Weiss, and chair- [illegible] man for the Jewish National Fund, [illegible] Max Katz.

Preceding the election, Rabbi [illegible] Charry discussed the World Zionist [illegible] Congress held this past summer in [illegible] Lucerne. Group singing led by [illegible] Cantor Glass and the reading of [illegible] humorous stories by Daniel Harri- [illegible] son, completed the program.

Selected to the board of directors [illegible] for the coming year were Charles [illegible] Breener, Isaac Wolf, David Rosen- [illegible] berg, Leo Talesnick, Bernard [illegible] Stroyman, Jack Kammins, Morris [illegible] Strauss, publisher of The Chronicle, [illegible] L. [illegible] Von Osteren-Marnitz, wealthy [illegible] German landowner and member [illegible] of the old aristocratic Hohenzol- [illegible] ern circles, created a sensation [illegible] throughout German by resigning [illegible] his title as honorary citizen of [illegible] Koenigsberg, when the Nazi may- [illegible] or of the city demanded he dis- [illegible] continue selling the produce of [illegible] his land through a Jewish com- [illegible] mission merchant.

Nazi Frats To Disband

BERLIN (Spl.)—With a final, [illegible] but heroic, rebuke to the Nazis, [illegible] 110 German fraternities, unable to [illegible] continue honorably in the face of [illegible] Nazi restrictions, have decided to [illegible] dissolve their organizations which [illegible] have been integral parts of German [illegible] universities for centuries.

The Deutsche Burschenschaft, [illegible] representative of the fraternities, [illegible] which constitute about half of the [illegible] student organizations of the na- [illegible] tion, announced that the groups [illegible] would turn over their houses to [illegible] the Nazis after a final ceremony in [illegible] Wartburg Castle.

Difficulty between the Nazis and [illegible] the fraternities reached an im- [illegible] passe recently when the fraterni- [illegible] ties refused to abide by a Hitler [illegible] decree ordering them to exclude [illegible] all Jewish members.

Shoe Repairer Borrowing For Wife's Funeral, Had $40,000

TORONTO, Ont., (JTA)—A shoe [illegible] repairer so "impecunious" he bor- [illegible] rowed money from a local syna- [illegible] gogue two years ago to bury his [illegible] wife, had a fortune of $40,000 in [illegible] cash and securities, it was discov- [illegible] ered today after his death.

Jews Form Own Relief For Winter

BERLIN (JTA)—Deprived of a [illegible] share in the Winter Relief Cam- [illegible] paign opened by Reich Chancellor [illegible] Hitler last week, Jews will conduct [illegible] their own campaign for Winter re- [illegible] lief with the permission of the gov- [illegible] ernment, according to a plan sub- [illegible] mitted to the authorities by the [illegible] Reichsvertretung, central repre- [illegible] sentative body of Jews in Ger- [illegible] many.

Approval of the plan by the Nazi [illegible] Commissariat for Winter Relief is [illegible] awaited.

The plan provides for special [illegible] Jewish fund collections among [illegible] Jews similar to the campaign to [illegible] be waged among the Nazis. The [illegible] larger Jewish communities will [illegible] share part of their income with [illegible] the smaller communities.

The Berlin Jewish Community [illegible] Council declared that it would [illegible] conduct its own campaign by visit- [illegible] ing all Jewish houses and by so- [illegible] liciting Jewish firms to assign a [illegible] percentage of their income for Jew- [illegible] ish relief. Jews will also be urged [illegible] to sacrifice one meal a month, con- [illegible] tributing what it would cost to the [illegible] relief fund.

Says Jews Included

BERLIN (Spl.)—Denouncing re- [illegible] ports that Jews had been excluded [illegible] from the Winter relief fund, an [illegible] official notice announced that "Win- [illegible] ter relief work care has been pro- [illegible] vided for Jews," as the first of a [illegible] series of six One-dish Sundays was [illegible] observed last Sunday.

BERLIN (JTA) — Under the [illegible] heading, "Jewish Front Against [illegible] Mussolini," the current issue of [illegible] Halbmonatschrift carries an arti- [illegible] cle by General Erich Ludendorff, [illegible] accusing the Jews of instigating [illegible] the Italo-Ethiopian war.

The first meeting of the new sea- [illegible] son for Senior Hadassah will be [illegible] a luncheon meeting in the vestry [illegible] rooms of the Beth El Zedeck Tem- [illegible] ple, Thirty-fourth and Ruckle [illegible] streets, Wednesday, October 23.

The Congressman spoke on "My War Referendum Resolution and International Affairs."

"There are two ways to prevent war," Mr. Ludlow said. "One is to let all the people of America, women as well as men vote on the question of declaring war, and another is to take the profit out of war, by providing that when war does come, all war properties, munitions plants, etc. shall be taken over by the government for the period of the emergency."

Jack Kammins was chairman of the programs committee. Samuel Mantell, who was recently elected president of the Indiana-Kentucky Association of B'nai B'rith, introduced the speaker.

How To Make Jewish Store Owners Keep Closed On Yom Kippur

Indignant because Jewish merchants of Jersey City, N. J., "flagrantly desecrate the awesome Day of Atonement by keeping their stores and places of business open," Meyer Pesin, editor of The Jewish Standard, of that city, demands that they "surrender their divine gift of being a Jew and renounce their faith and religion."

After telling of the Jewish merchant who had, "the audacity and shamelessness not only to keep his several local stores open, but to ceremoniously open a new store on the Day of Atonement," Pesin declares "we ask our apostate brethren to renounce the name 'Jew' and all connection with Judaism."

Unfortunately Pesin's solution is, for more reasons than one, impractical. If these merchants had not long before the Day of Atonement cast away their Jewishness then indeed they would not on this day have sacrificed their self respect for a few dollars. Then too, it should be remembered that the non-Jewish world does not permit (viz Germany) the sloughing off in one generation by an individual of his Judaism, so that even though these merchants followed Mr. Pesin's suggestion, people would still consider them Jews.

Two logical procedures can be followed by Mr. Pesin to effect a change of heart in the Jewish business men of Jersey City.

In the first place he could, although for some reason he declares it would be unfair, hold up to public appraisal those stores whose doors remain open on Yom Kippur by listing their names in his publication.

A more effective way, however, to keep these stores closed, would be to follow the method of the Catholics on Good Friday. At this time even Jewish stores, close for one hour. In advance of the holy day stores are polled to learn if they will close for the occasion to allow their employees to attend services. Then these names are printed in the public press. Naturally no store cares to earn the enmity of so large a section of the buying public as the Catholics. In much the same manner no Jewish merchant would care to court the disdain of the Jewish population.

This is the solution. Let Mr. Pesin next year print in advance the names of stores intending to observe Yom Kippur by closing their stores. Those stores who refuse to close would probably be criticized by their regular customers so that even a small amount of business acumen would warn the store owner who had considered remaining open that feigned religion is often as effective on this earth as honest religion.

The subject of wide controversy recently when he objected to the attempt of the South African government to dispose of sundry pieces of statuary carved by him, Jacob Epstein is back on the front page again because his interpretation of "Rima," ethereal heroine of W. H. Hudson's "Green Mansions" was daubed with a red preparation in London's Hyde Park by vandals or pranksters.

An eyesore to staid London citizenry because of its undraped limbs, "Rima" has more than once been maltreated, often with tar and feathers, and more often with ordinary paint. The last job, effected with nermagpanate of potash, may be permanent.

Epstein is, without question, one of the world's best living sculptors. And London appreciates his ability as much as any city, but Epstein's characteristic of complaining out loud whenever his artistic sense is shocked, has made him, it seems, like the child who is always being teased, an extremely suitable person to torment.

Will Jewish Musical Genius Disappear

In an interview with Alvin Hellman in a story on another page in this issue, Michel Cherniavsky, famous Jewish cellist, propounds the theory that Yehudi Menuhin is the last of a long line of "ghetto geniuses" because the persecution, suffering and sacrifice that made up this particular era in Jewish history is disappearing. This thesis, although new to Jewish music, is a commonplace text in literature, where literary historians always point to the invigoration of literary production after every great war or social upheaval.

Behind Cherniavsky's statement, however, lies a broader phenomenon. The same forces which contributed to the greatness of Jewish musicians are responsible for the general high intellectual excellence of Jews as a whole. Psychologists explain that the motivation or drive in Jewish people is greater because of their environment, which up until very recently, has always been extremely unhappy. To raise above and out of this condition has been the Jew a terrific motivation.

Cherniavsky's theory is probably true. Great musicians Jews may have in the future, but the chances are that an improvement of conditions, social and economic, will result in an incidence of great Jewish musicians no greater than that of the general population.

What could be more effective from a goodwill standpoint than the election of Oscar Strauss, Atlanta business man, to the presidency of the Marist College Alumni Association, a Catholic institution. In Cincinnati Rabbi James G. Heller is a member of the board of directors of the Young Men's Christian Association. By the time to institutions and organizations that are not Jewish, the Jewish community is attacking the problem of

March
Of Time

Time Magazine, sponsors of the March of Time on air and screen, is preparing a pictorial version of the Jewish situation in Germany.

Its newshounds are rushing around here and there marshaling facts and figures to be used with scenes typical of Hitlerland's persecution of the Jews.... Wonder if they've managed to get hold of some action shots of that Kurfuerstendamm riot.... That would make the Hitler apologists over here pretty uncomfortable.... And it might go a long way toward further crystallizing sentiment against American participation in the Olympics....

Hospital
Notes

William Rosenwald, who is still referred to as the son of the late philanthropist Julius Rosenwald, although he has earned philanthropic spurs in his own right, is recuperating from an operation.... Injured his knee playing tennis last Summer. Operation was scheduled for August but he postponed it so that he could make a promised tour of four cities on behalf of the United Jewish Appeal.... Speaking of the U.J.A., here's an interesting note that didn't get into the publicity releases.... 1,000 prominent non-Jewish leaders in various fields were approached by the Appeal to sign a statement supporting its campaign and socking Hitler.... Of the 1,000, signatures of 200 were received, including bishops, college presidents and editors.... Several of the 200 wrote on the statement that they would like to make contributions and asked how they could do it.... Two, who did not sign their names, scrawled on the statement that "we all should mind our own business"....

Heckscher
Was There

Among those present and speaking at the recent reception to Prof. Max Reinhardt on his return to this country after a trip abroad was none other than August Heckscher.... August, it will be remembered, on his return from Europe on a Nazi liner blithely informed reporters that "we may have a problem like that (of Germany) right here.".... Heckscher then asked the reporters, it may further be recalled, "how many of our doctors and judges are Jews?" and answered himself that they formed "a very great percentage in proportion to the population.... A situation like this is bound to cause trouble.... That is our problem of the future.".... Wonder what a fellow like that was doing at a reception to Prof. Reinhardt which was also attended by Prof. Einstein?... Speaking of Prof. Reinhardt, somebody close to that impresario has informed us that he tossed all the preliminary script work done on "The Road To Rome" out of his hotel window, he was that dissatisfied with it.... And then he had to work two nights in a row until five a. m. to do it over the way he wanted it....

Nazi
Tales

This one is gleaned from Winchell.... "Some of us were babbling about the Olympic Games.... Most of the chatterers were indignant about the Nazi discrimination against the Hebrew athletes, and there was speculation on what measures they had taken to disqualify them.... The Jewish jumpers got a fair test," spoke up one chap. "They were sent to a concentration camp, walled by a fifteen-foot fence. Those that jump over the fence from a standing start can complete in the games!...."

A columnist in the London Star writes that an informant of his who spent some time socially with Hitler says Der Fuehrer's anti-Semitic obsession has risen to a point where it is a real embarrassment to his friends.... At one afternoon party, this informant says, Hitler spent the whole time standing by the window, pointing out to the astonished gathering what he thought to be the Jewish traits of passersby in the street below.... The company got the impression that about 80 per cent of the German people were that day of Jewish origin....

Competition

Competition for human interest material is pretty keen in the Yiddish press these days.... One day the Forward runs an ad promising readers a series of articles on the intimate details of the life of Boris Tomashevsky, famed stage star. The next day and the Day runs an ad promising its readers a similar series on the life of Bessie Tomashevsky, the actor's estranged wife and a famous actress in her own right.... The two have appeared together on recent occasions in the name of charity....

Yiddish theatre life has been considerably brightened this season by the introduction of a female orchestra.... An orchestra of eight women graces the pit of the Folks Theatre.... The innovation, setting a precedent in Yiddish theatrical history, was introduced by Joseph Rumshimsky who conducts the orchestra himself....

Many Happy
Returns

On November 1, Sholom Asch, the writing man, will be exactly fifty-five years old.... and in the same month the following notables will have birthdays: Franklin P. Adams (nee Schlossman), writer, who'll be 54.... Ed L. Bernays, publicist, 44.... Abraham Flexner, educator, 69.... Felix Frankfurter, law professor, 53.... Harry L. Gluckman, social service man, 46.... Governor of Illinois Henry Horner, 57.... George S. Kaufman, playwright, 46.... Edgar Jay Lauer, New York State Supreme Court Justice, 64.... Richard Percy Limburg, banker, 40.... Not to mention Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis who'll be 79 on the thirtieth as we advised last week....

Australian Estate

To the Editor,
I would appreciate it very much if you would be kind to give me some information about an article that appeared in The Spokesman's 14th of June number. That a man Leib Weinberger died in Australia and they are looking for the heirs. I know that a brother of my grandfather with that name left Hungary about 1848-50 for England. A short time after that we lost track of him.

I thank you very much for any information you can give me in this case.

Wants To Know About
Australian Legacy

To the Editor
In a July issue of The Spokesman you have inserted a notice for heirs of a man by the name of Weinberger who resided in Australia.

A brother-in-law of mine bears that name. He also had a relative who moved to Australia and never heard from him.

Will you please inform me as to whom I may write in reference to this matter.

MRS. A. RUBY.
New York N.Y.

Editor's note: The man to whom the article in question referred to was Leib Weinberger, who died in Melbourne fifty years ago, leaving an estate reputed to be $100,000. About 1,100 people have claimed the fortune, which Weinberger willed evenly to his relatives, none of whom can be found by the Australian government.

Mrs. De Haas Calls Attention To the Brandeis Collection at the University of Louisville
October 14, 1935

To the Editor,
May I call the attention of your readers to the needs of the Library of the University of Louisville. It has an excellent collection on Modern Palestine from the nucleus provided by Justice Louis D. Brandeis who some years ago presented to the University of his native city his own library, including the Palestine literature.

Such a collection in the South, where no important Jewish library exists may eventually prove of great value to those desirous of understanding Palestinian and Jewish problems.

There must be thousands of books, pamphlets and journals, bearing on Palestine and Jewish themes which Gifts in any language may be sent direct to the Librarian, Miss Evelyn J. Schneider, University of Louisville, Louisville, Ky., or to the undersigned.

Distilleries Hire 30,000

Kentucky distilleries are employing more and more people every day, according to a statement issued today by Owsley Brown, Chairman of the Distillers' Executive Committee.

With over 30,000 Kentucky men and women already employed by the distilling and allied industries in Kentucky, more than five thousand additional employees will be required alone by two more large distilleries which will locate in Kentucky if the State votes for Repeal on November 5, Mr. Brown said.

If the people of Kentucky vote "Yes" to repeal the old State Prohibition amendment, these two new distilleries alone, plus a half-dozen smaller ones now nearing completion, will take more than 10,000 more Kentucky people—2500 families—off the relief rolls, it is said.

"The distilling industry directly affects Kentucky employment in many ways," Mr. Brown said. "For instance, aside from direct distillery employees, over 2000 Kentucky miners worked one full month last year to supply Kentucky distilleries with coal. Thousands of men were required to cut the 80,000,000 feet of white oak lumber required for barrels—several hundred skilled coopers to make the barrels, thousands of railway employees helped to haul the coal, the grain, the lumber, the barrels and the whiskey itself.

"Kentucky distilleries bought over 9,000,000 bushels of grain last year alone, and this year it will be much more. This grain brought ten million dollars to farmers' pockets and helped raise the prices received for all the grain grown in Kentucky.

"Even with all these benefits being received daily by hundreds of thousands of Kentuckians," Mr. Brown said, "it is surprising indeed that few people realize that the fate of the distilling industry in Kentucky is to be decided at the polls on November 5. Here are the facts in the case:

"Prior to 1933, Kentucky was dry under both the Eighteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution, and a State Constitutional Prohibition Amendment.

"In 1933, national repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment legalized the distilling industry only so far as the Federal Government was concerned.

"National Repeal still left Kentucky with State Prohibition laws which, under our State Constitution, could not be repealed until the November election of 1935.

"Pending that date, the Legislature in 1934 passed an act known as the Liquor Control Act, which now permits (as an emergency measure) the sale of alcoholic beverages.

"The Liquor Control Act, which is merely an emergency measure enacted pending the repeal vote, must not be confused with the State Constitution's Prohibition Amendment.

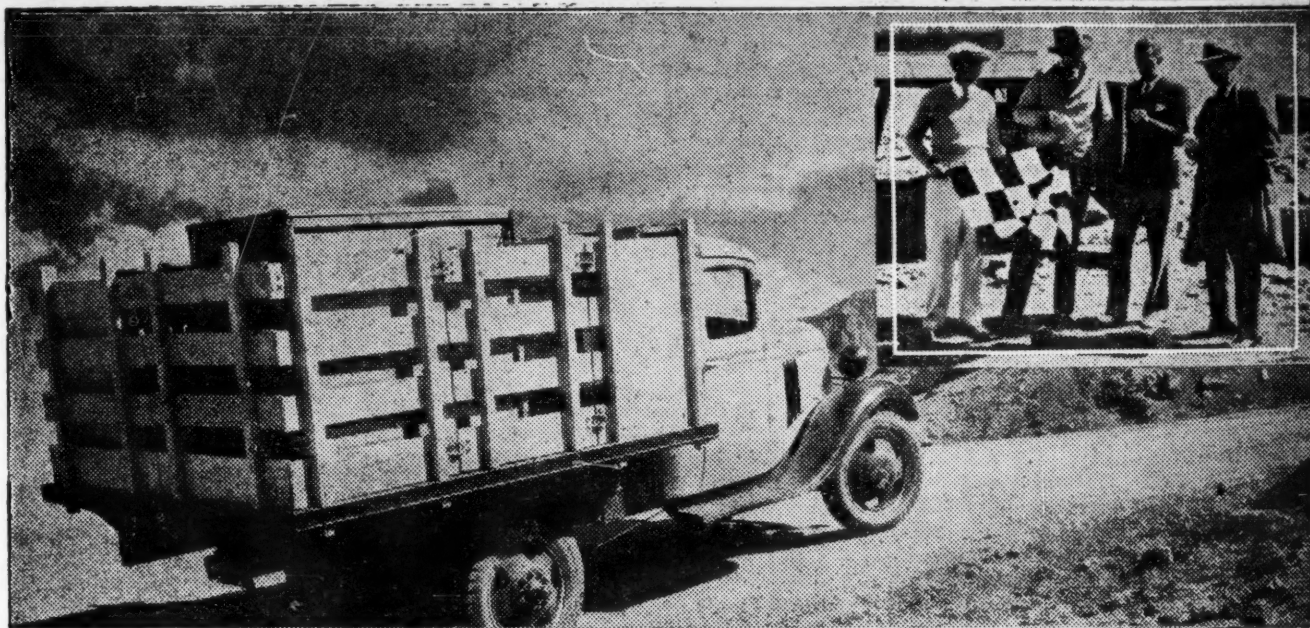

"The Prohibition Amendment is a permanent part of our State Constitution unless the people of Kentucky vote to repeal it on November 5.

"A vote for Repeal in November is NOT a vote to repeal the Liquor Control Act now in effect. It is simply a vote to put an end to Constitutional Prohibition in Kentucky, and to replace it with a system by which each county, city, town or precinct may determine for itself whether or not alcoholic beverages may be sold therein.

Then, too, Kentucky needs the revenue derived from legitimate distilling and its allied industries.

Since repeal distilleries in Kentucky have paid more than $26,000,000 in federal and state taxes, and have invested more than $63,000,000 to start production and re-establish Kentucky as the foremost producer of whiskey of all the states in the Union.

Chevrolet Truck Demonstrates Power, Efficiency

In the first formally observed and timed tests of motor trucks over the perilous hairpin turns and steep switchbacks of the Pikes Peak auto highway, near Colorado Springs, Chevrolet 1½-ton and half-ton trucks demonstrated their power, endurance and efficiency over the course of the annual hill climb contest, a distance of 12 miles, 2200 feet, with a rise of 4959 feet from the start to the summit, 14,109 feet above sea level. The upper illustrations show the 1½-ton truck, driven by W. P. Bentrup, on its way to a record of 37 minutes, 52½ seconds, with its full 3000-pound load (it made the run afterward, without load, in 26 minutes, 12 seconds), and the officials at the finish.

Smear Nude Catholics By Epstein Name Jew

LONDON (Spl.)—Tarred and feathered, painted red and green and black, and maltreated generally, Jacob Epstein's figure of "Rima" standing in Hyde Park was subjected to further ignominy last week when the striking nude, subject of much controversy, was stained red with a preparation believed to be permanganate of potash.

Since its erection in the park in 1925 in commemoration of the heroine of W. H. Hudson's "Green Mansions," the statue has been the target of many attempts to cause its removal. Heretofore the paint has been washed off, leaving the statue little worse for wear. The newest coat, it is believed, may be permanent.

to make the distilling industry the most important single factor in Kentucky's march to prosperity.

On November 5th the voters of Kentucky will be called upon to decide whether under the state constitution the distilling industry will continue to work for Kentucky prosperity, or whether we will revert to the chaos of absolute prohibition. As it stands today the constitution of Kentucky prohibits the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquors to the public; yet, by an

The distilling industry has been responsible for putting over 30,000 Kentucky people back to work, many of whom were formerly on relief rolls. There has been more than $11,000,000.00 worth of grain purchased by the distillers during the past year. Over 80,000,000,000 feet of white oak timber was purchased from owners of Kentucky timberland. It took $4,500,000 to manufacture this timber into 800,000 barrels which were used by Kentucky distillers in the storage of their products. Kentucky distillers bought over 200,000-tons of coal to run their plants in one year. Additional expenditures by the distilleries for supplies and raw materials running into tens of HOLLYWOOD—Way back in 1919 the citizens hereabouts were startled to see the miracle of huge jets of light shooting into the night. The curious followed the beams to their source and found Sid Grauman standing behind an array of studio killeys drawing the crowds into his Million Dollar Theatre. Grauman was the first showman to discover the power of the huge sun-ares to attract human moths. Since then it's become a Hollywood custom, when you want a mob for the opening of a picture.

A fortune-teller read Sylvia Sidney's palm and told her that she would have one marriage which would be lasting and one boy. "Nous verrons."

By trade Lew Pollack is a song-writer...but he's got a "telent." The Schuberts used to give him passes to their shows because his laugh is so infectious that even if the show wasn't so good the audience laughed anyway. And now studios are using him to see the daily "rushes." He laughs just where an average audience laughs, and thus execs know how to cut the pictures.

Round the Town: Jack Benny lost a hundred dollars to Eddie Cantor on the Louis-Baer debacle, and Cantor had to advertise to collect. Max Factor, Hollywood's make-up king, has contracted to supply all the cosmetics for the Soviet movie studios. Sybil Jason will be Al Jolson's leading lady in "The Singing Kid." Walter King, going back to Broadway in a musical, doesn't know whether to return as a Wolfe, or a King. The Ann Ronnell-Lester Cowan duet is now a solo. For an entire week his Dad's company shot movie scenes all over their year-estate, and Sammy Goldwyn, Jr. was in ecstasy. By royal command, Gregory Ratoff's "18 Minutes to Go" was viewed by the English King and Queen. There still remain 143 theatres owned by Jews in Der Reich...Nazis plan to relieve them of their licenses by December 3rd.

Our own Ripley Dept: Al Boasberg directed an entire picture in one day!...Started at 8:00 in the morning and completed the 4000 feet by midnight...Director Mervyn LeRoy successfully recorded a six-and-a-half-minute scene in one "take." Megaphones are obsolete among directors...evidently the shouting days are over.

for him. Take my son. (Cherniavsky has four sons of whom he is inordinately proud). He's a bright, talented boy, a fine student, but he hasn't the chance I had. I'm glad of that—but such conditions do not make for musical geniuses."

Cherniavsky is going to Palestine next March for a three-weeks' concert tour. It will be his first trip to Palestine and he is quite excited about it. Huberman and Elman have sung the fame of Palestine audiences far and wide.

"Musicians tell each other," he explained. "In Palestine you get enthusiastic, appreciative audiences. Every musician wants audiences like that. It's a joy to play to them."

Knows Jewish Audiences

Cherniavsky has had experience with audiences—particularly the Jewish. Forty-two years old now, he has been playing for them since the age of six, in about every country of Europe and on five continents.

With his brothers, Jan and Leo, he formed a celebrated trio that visited all parts of the world and brought music to the very outskirts of civilisation. He vividly recalls travels by stage coach in Australia a little more than thirty years ago, and trips in ox carts in South Africa not so many years after the turn of the century.

Jewish communities in those days would turn out en masse to hear Jewish artists and Jewish music and Jews would come from miles around to welcome the lads.

Cherniavsky recalls how many times these Jews, who fled from pogrom-ridden Czarist Russia, wistfully recalled the old days there, and recounted happy experiences in Kiev, Odessa. . . . Pogroms? but they lasted only a few days then it was quiet, they

In Palestine.

I asked Cherniavsky if his explanation for Jewish musical genius didn't rule out the development of musical genius in Palestine.

"Wait and see," he advised. "Conditions and circumstances there may create a new set of forces which, working from an entirely different direction, may develop a germ of musical genius rivaling that to which the ghetto gave birth."

Despite Nazi denials, the Manchester Guardian, one of the most authoritative newspapers in the world, has verified the report that Nazis murdered a Jewish football player during a game between a Nazi and Polish team September 15.

Stylish Frock

This charming daytime frock has many important style points. There is, first of all, the material which fashions it, being a new soft crepe loomed with bemberg. Ideal for daytime wear or for travel, this new bemberg mixture has a fashionably dull, pebbly surface and a smooth satiny black. It drapes and shirrs in graceful lines and comes in fall's loveliest colors. Soft shirring, a rounded yoke, a wide turn-over collar and full sleeves gathered in tightly at the wrist distinguish this flattering costume. The slightly flared and shorter skirt, the full shirred bodice and dropped shoulder line, the wide belt and glittering gold nailhead trim with slide fastening at the neck are all definitely 1935. They combine style rightness with a practical wearability that will see you through your business or social schedule, day in and day out with nice simplicity and charm.

Calcium Needed In Daily Menu

By EDITH M. BARBER

Do you know how to check your daily diet for its calcium content? It is essential that you have a liberal supply, and even more important that the children of the family get what they need.

Growing boys and girls need from three to four times as much calcium in proportion to their weight as do adults. Calcium is responsible, although not entirely, for producing good bones and teeth. It helps to regulate the way our blood flows and clots. Nowadays before a tonsil operation, it is customary to test the blood for its clotting properties. If these are not satisfactory, calcium salts are given the prospective patient.

The food which is most liberally supplied with calcium is milk which, of course, includes cheese, one of the most important milk products. Ice cream will also contribute some. Some vegetables and fruits provide it in less liberal amounts. Cauliflower, figs, dried beans, celery, string beans, cabbage, carrots, spinach, oranges, potatoes, eggs, whole wheat and bran contribute worthwhile amounts.

A child who gets a quart of milk a day will not suffer from a calcium shortage.

Fabric Honors Go To New Woolens

Most of the glory in the fabric realm is going to the new woolens this season. Whether you work or play, whether you travel or saunter about town, whether you are campus-bound or enroute to the office, whether you are counted among the spectators sports group in the grandstand or whether you tea at five or dance at the midnight "prom," if you would register among the best-dressed, fashion decrees that your costume be of some one or other of the handsome new wools that are showing this season.

Time was "way back when" that the merits of woolens were reckoned in terms of sturdy utilization qualities that insured comfort when the temperature went low as well as sterling wearability throughout the practical hours. But now all is changed in that you may have your woolen weaves as fastidious, as eloquent of chic and charm as you please.

Wherefore, the new wool fabrics have become the idol of fashion. The current collections intrigue with their wide versatility, their breath-taking novelty, the colorings which are rich and beautiful beyond wildest flights of fancy, together with weaves and textures the likes of which were not dreamed of in days of yore.

The woman who knows her woolens will choose according to time, place and occasion. For sports and for practical daytime clothes, rabbit woolens are outstanding. They are shown in cunning novelty checks and stripes and bold plaids which particularly stress the new wines, chic violet tones, dark browns and deep rich greens. Nubby mixture tweeds and herringbones are also favorites in sports woolens. Popular also are home-puns, surface cordings, diagonal or vertical ribbings and endless weaves that are nubbed, slubbed, ecked and highly metalized, fascinating and mysterious beyond anything previously achieved in the annals of the woolen industry. Wool crepes, printed challis and

Oust Lewald As Sports Head For Jewishness

BERLIN (JTA)—Theodor Lewald, a "non-Aryan" of Jewish extraction and one of the foremost sports authorities in Germany, has been deprived by the Nazi regime of all his sports posts except the chairmanship of the technical committee organizing the forthcoming Berlin Olympiad, the Jewish Telegraphic Agency confirmed.

Lewald was permitted to retain his post as head of the technical committee because his knowledge of sports throughout the world and his numerous connections are most essential to the work of that committee.

He has, however, been deprived of his post as president of the German Olympics Association and the Reichs Sport Association.

Olympics headquarters here informed the Jewish Telegraphic Agency that it is not yet certain whether Lewald will go to the United States to make necessary arrangements here. If he does go it will not be before the Spring, it was stated.

Lewald is a member of the same family as Fanny Lewald, noted German woman writer and fighter for Jewish emancipation.

Constitutional Amendment No. 1 is being proposed to the voters of Kentucky on November 5th to, first, repeal Kentucky's prohibition amendment; second, to reinstate Section 61 of the constitution which provides for local option; and third, to make the way clear for effective control and regulation.

Every thinking Kentuckian wants the way clear for constructive action in regulating and controlling the liquor traffic. Our citizens generally must be brought to the realization of the importance of this matter before November 5th. They must be aroused to the fact that the repeal of the 18th amendment in no way affected the Kentucky prohibition law. It is up to Kentucky to intelligently handle her own liquor problem within her own borders. Voting "Yes" for proposed Constitutional Amendment No. 1—which will be found on the ballot on November 5th—is the only logical way out.—(Advertisement).

4 Jews Try For Michigan Grid Eleven

A quartet of Jewish gridsters, Sol Sobsey, a guard; Stanton Schumann, center and guard; Edward Greenwald, tackle, and Jesse Garber, another guard, are aspirants for the University of Michigan eleven.

Sobsey, who is a sophomore, is the regular on the team and hails from Brooklyn, N. Y. Standing 6 feet and weighing 186 pounds, he was originally an end, but for the want of competent guards, Coach Kipke switched the husky New Yorker to guard.

courts, Howard "Peewee" Kahn, youthful captain of the University of Michigan 1935-36 tennis team, has begun workouts which he hopes will send him toward fame

Garber and Schumann are both juniors, and Sobsey and Greenwald are sophomores. Schumann is from Winnetka, Ill., weighs 191 pounds and is 5 feet 9 inches high. Garber, who is from New York City, is 5 feet, 8 1-2 inches high and weighs 185. He is the only varsity letterman of the four, though all the others won their freshman numerals during their first year. Greenwald is from Whiting, Ind., and is the biggest boy of the bunch, standing 6 feet, 3 inches high and weighing 203 pounds. Kipke is expecting great things from him in the future.

Kahn, who is a senior in the College of Arts and Sciences on the Wolverine campus, has won two letters in the sport at Michigan and as a reward for his spectacular and dependable style of play last Spring, his teammates elected him captain.

ARREST RABBI'S DAUGHTER
VIENNA (JTA)—Edith Taglicht, daughter of seventy-four-year-old Chief Rabbi Israel Taglicht, has been arrested in Berlin for writing an anti-Nazi article, it was learned here this week.

In response to a plea from the aged rabbi, Cardinal Innitzer promised to intervene in behalf of Miss Taglicht, who is a teacher of Jewish religion in Berlin schools.

Dr. Taglicht left for Berlin. His daughter was transferred meanwhile to Moabit Prison.

Anti-Jewish Posters On Pacific Coast Probed By B'nai B'rith

Police Sift In Seattle

SEATTLE, Wash. (Spl.)—Indignant comment mounted high today in the Jewish community here as the first open Jew-baiting incident in this city in recent years gave Seattle its first taste of anti-Jewish attacks now widespread in many American cities.

Cause of the flurry of excitement were scores of large posters, glued to telephone poles throughout downtown Seattle, declaring that Jews have "a distinctly racial program calling, wherever possible, for the seduction of a shikse (any Gentile girl, young or unprotected; and to whom as a class they have applied that most opprobrious, significant and insulting epithet of 'chicken')."

B'nai B'rith To Investigate

P. Allen Rickles, B'nai B'rith Grand President of District No. 4, launched an immediate investigation. He said the posters have appeared in Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles, and were put in mailboxes in Des Moines, Wash., and distributed from house to house in Yakima this week.

Police are looking for the culprits. The "proclamation," urges "Christians and Aryans" to "Buy Gentile! Employ Gentiles! Vote Gentile!" attacks the movies as "Jewish-controlled," charges all Jews are Communists seeking to destroy America and declares "through a general reputation for sharp practices, low cunning, insurance frauds and dishonest bankruptcy proceedings, they have promoted a widespread contempt for the ordinary virtues of honor and honesty in business."

Police pointed out it is illegal to post printed matter without a license. The "proclamation" was signed by "The American National Party."

In almost every instance where a poster was found by Jewish citizens, they were torn down.

Dealers To Be Licensed

NEW YORK (Spl.)—Announcement by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace of federal regulation of the live poultry industry in New York and Jersey City, was hailed by Jewish housewives, who an investigation disclosed are paying gangsters a toll of $1,000,000 annually.

On and after November 25, Secretary Wallace has ordered that all dealers and handlers of live poultry must be licensed by the Department of Agriculture.

Rabbi Wins Car

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (Spl.)—Dr. Isser W. Miskat, spiritual leader of Congregation Beth El here, is driving a new four-door Chevrolet sedan, his prize in a nation-wide slogan contest sponsored by the Liggett Drug Co.

Jews Safe In United States, Rabbi Newman Says

NEW YORK (Spl.)—Anti-Semitism will not be lifted into the status of a political doctrine, although it exists economically, Rabbi Louis I. Newman, of Temple Rodeph Shalom, declared in his sermon here. "Jews in America need have no fear for their freedom," he stated.

"Occasionally there are disturbances which seem to augur badly for the security of the Jew," Rabbi Newman pointed out, "but these are only occasional, and are manufactured by partisans under orders from abroad."

Holy Land Aid League

JERUSALEM (JTA) — Rumors of marching troops and secret armament importations gripped Palestine this week as a repercussion of the Italo-Ethiopian war.

Munitions were found in 400 barrels of cement addressed to a person named Kattan in Tel Aviv when the shipment was unloaded from the Belgian steamship Leopold II at Jaffa.

When one barrel was inadvertently broken, a case of cartridges concealed within was revealed. The incident gave rise to wild rumors of large munition shipments into Palestine.

The Grand Mufti and Former Mayor Nashashibi of Jerusalem utilized the incident for incitement against the Jews.

The Arab leaders prepared a protest to the High Commissioner and a manifesto to Arabs throughout the world pointing out the danger of an armed Jewry.

Arab incitement against the Jews in connection with the war continues unabated. Police searching Arab villages near Tulkarm arrested 30 Arabs after finding fifteen guns which had disappeared from the police arsenal.

Reports were circulated all week that British troops are being secretly moved to Palestine and Transjordan, some of them from Malta.

Basis for the reports was seen in the recent airplane trip of Acting High Commissioner Sir John Fathorn-Hall to Amman, Transjordan, to have lunch with Emir Abdullah. The rumors lack official confirmation.

To Enforce Sanctions

Meanwhile, the Jewish Telegraphic Agency was informed Palestine will participate in the enforcement of the League of Nations' economic sanctions against Italy. The government is awaiting definite instructions from London in the manner and extent to which the sanctions are to be carried out.

In 1934 Palestine imported from Italy goods to the value of 2,406,000 dollars. Exports to Italy were valued at $83,000 in the same period.

Sanctions by Palestine are expected to hit the Italian shipping industry particularly hard, since both Italian passenger and freight lines have been profiting heavily in recent years as a result of the Palestine boom. Last year a total of 365 Italian ships dropped anchor in Palestine harbors.

Italian propaganda has so far not penetrated the East, certainly not to Palestine to a perceptible degree of influence, Great Britain and the East, semi-official organ of the Colonial Office, reports in its current issue.

Paper Flays Nationalists

LOS ANGELES (Spl.) — Terming the authors of anti-Jewish posters appearing in cities all over the Pacific coast, "cowardly" and "vicious," the Los Angeles Times flayed The American Nationalist Party for its "wanton and unjustified attack upon the Jewish people."

The paper points to the anonymity of the organization, and declares that no such group exists in Los Angeles.

The editorial reads:

Malicious Intolerance

A new example of malicious intolerance, in the form of a wanton and unjustified attack upon the Jewish people, is now being given wide circulation on the Pacific Coast. It is a so-called proclamation issued over the name of "The American Nationalist Party" from "general headquarters" in Los Angeles. This signature is, in fact, mere cowardly anonymity, since no such organization is known here, no names of officers are given, no address is made public and there is no indication even where the scurrilous sheet was printed. It has been stuffed into newspapers and distributed in other ways, apparently by the thousands.

As in the case of most malicious propaganda, the contents of the "proclamation" are made mainly out of whole cloth; such facts as are presented are perverted; the rest is a mixture of quarter-truths and whole falsehood.

To the straight-thinking such an attack is self-answering and self-defeating. The Jewish race and religion need no defense, those who know the facts of long history are well aware.

An appeal is made in the proclamation to "true Americans." No true American could respond to such an appeal; toleration is the very foundation of Americanism and religious prejudice altogether alien to the ideals of this country.

Such attacks are not attacks on Jews alone, but on everyone who believes in the principle of individual liberty. There is no room in America for those who by such vicious and cowardly means would undermine the first article in its code of freedom.

At the annual election of officers of the Central Hebrew Congregation, Twenty-first street and Central avenue, last week, Max Sachs was re-elected president. Morris Jessel was named vice-president, Joseph Fleischman, secretary, and Samuel Dorfman, treasurer.

Causes Uneasiness In Rumania

KING CAROL

MAGDA LUPESCU

New Attack On Lupescu Stirs Rumanian Jewry

BUCHAREST (Spl.)—The Jewish community of Rumania is growing increasingly uneasy as the recurring cycle of agitation against the affection of King Carol for Magda Lupescu, daughter of a Rumanian Jewish tailor, appears to be reaching a new crisis.

Just as Jewish leaders began to breathe more easily after Dr. Iuliu Maniu, notorious Rumanian anti-Semite, renounced anti-Semitism in an article in the official Rumanian Jewish newspaper, the peasant party released a broadside of leaflets on this city repeating the charge made some time ago by Maniu that Mme. Lupescu is responsible for "almost every ill which beset Rumania."

The pamphlets charged that through Mme. Lupescu a disproportionate number of Jews were getting easy jobs.

Tranfusion Jail Cause

BERLIN (Spl.)—The dramatic story of a Jewish doctor who was imprisoned for seven months in a concentration camp because he gave his own blood in a transfusion to save his Aryan patient's life was revealed here as Dr. Lefler, official of the Racial-Political Bureau, published a statement denying that a transfusion can change the character of the recipient of alien blood through transfusion.

Dr. Hans Serelman, the victim of the Nazi interpretation of medicine, was sent to the camp on a charge of "race defilement" brought against him by German physicians with whom his practice had come into competition.

While in concentration camp, Dr. Serelman attempted suicide, such was his treatment, it was disclosed. When his attempt to take his life attracted official attention, he was released. After his release and resumption of practice, grateful patients told him of another trumped up charge to send him back to prison, and Dr. Serelman fled to Prague, where he is now living.

All patients given blood transfusions by Dr. Serelman recovered, it was disclosed.

Other officers chosen were Karl Pollak, vice president; Harry S. Joseph, secretary; A. Alpert, treasurer, and Louis Barnett, Louis Bryan, and H. H. Rosenberg, on the building committee.

Installation of officers will be held this Saturday, which is known as Shabbath B'Rashis, the Sabbath on which the first chapter of the Book of Genesis is read.

BETH EL SERVICES

Regular late services are now being held each Friday night in the Beth El Zedeck Temple, Thirty-fourth and Ruckle Streets. The entire Jewish community is invited.

Hirsch Jacobs, Jewish trainer, has saddled more winners than any other trainer for the past two years, and this year is far in front of any other stables.

The building of Bunker Hill Monument in Boston was made possible by the donation of $10,000 by Judah Touro toward its erection.

Lost Tot, 2½, Stumps Cops

BUFFALO (Spl.)—With all the determination that his two-and-a-half years could muster, Grant Mitchell, young Jewish boy, repeatedly told police who found him on a busy corner at 5 o'clock in the morning dressed in a flimsy pair of pajamas, that "I am Grant Mitchell," and "I just got up and walked out."

Stumped when they could not find any Mitchells in the telephone book, police bundled the lad who still maintained "I am Grant Mitchell" into bed.

On awakening, Grant Mitchell's worried parents called police. The boy's name was Grant Mitchell all right, but Mitchell was his middle and not his last name. It was Salzman. Mr. Salzman declared he planned to move the night latch up three-and-a-half feet on the door, so his son couldn't reach it.

Lottery For Trip

OMAHA, Neb. (Spl.)—A novel means of raising funds is being used by the local Chapter of Haddassah which will sell tickets for a free trip to Palestine for the person drawing the lucky number in a lottery.

The tickets are sold for $1.00 each.

The winner may exchange the Palestine trip for $300, officials of the chapter have announced. Proceeds of the lottery will be devoted to the Medical Fund.

Services In Pacific

HONOLULU (Spl.)—With torahs and other religious paraphernalia donated to the community by Israel Weinstein, an American Jew, the two hundred members of the Jewish community of Honolulu celebrated Yom Kippur and Rosh Hashonah at services in a rented hall. Rabbi Kenneth Zwernin, who made the trip from his home in San Francisco, officiated.

Regular services are conducted by Mr. Weinstein, who is stationed here with the United States Army Jewish Welfare Bureau, on lesser holidays.

Explanations of the derivation of the word "Ghetto" are many. In 1516 the Jews who in 1394 had been banished from Venice were allowed to re-enter the city and the site assigned to them as their residence was that on which numerous smelting furnaces formerly stood and called "ghetto," literally meaning molten metal. The word may be an abbreviation of borghetto, meaning borough; it may be derived from the Hebrew "chatzor," meaning inclosure. The name was applied in every town to the Jewish quarter.

New Year In Palestine, A Beautiful Pen Portrait

JERUSALEM (Spl.)—The first signs of the approaching New Year come in the cool, soft dawn of a September morning. It is Rosh Hodesh Ellul. On this first day of the month of the Old Year, the devout are early astir to prepare for their pilgrimage to the Tomb of Mother Rachel on the road to Bethlehem. All thru the long, sultry day they will fast and pray and supplicate. Mother Rachel to intercede for them; and at sunset they will return to the city, serene and calm in spirit, seemingly immune to the physical effects of hunger, thirst and heat.

Before the New Year comes in, they will rise night after night from their beds in the wee hours and make their way to a house of worship, where they will recite the Selihoth prayers for forgiveness of the sins committed in the year that is now ebbing to its decline. The cries of the Jewish beadles as they summon their congregants to prayer will mingle with the predawn calls of the Arab muezzin from the high turret of some mosque.

Throughout all the Jewish quarters and suburbs of the city there is a rustling and a bustling to welcome in the New Year with all due honors. Tailors and dressmakers and milliners and shoemakers work full steam ahead and pleas of late-comers are countered with a resolute "rak aharel ha-Haggim" ("After the holy days only").

Jewish housewives crowd the bazaars of the Old City and the markets of the New two days before the festival and the prices of chicken, meat and fish rise with the unremitting demand. Florist shops and flower stalls are sold out hours before the eve of Rosh Hashonah, for it is an immutable custom that flowers must adorn every home on Sabbaths and festivals.

All the public Jewish offices and many private ones close at noon, and the shops follow suit soon after. A festive spirit pervades the highways and byways. At sunset the streets swarm with Jews from every land of the East and West. Vivid plush kaftans elbow Oriental robes of variegated silks and sober European costumes, topped respectively with fur streimels and fezzes and cork helmets and soft felts. The women add their gamut of folk dress and color. The whole is a breath-taking sartorial epitome of all the Diasporas, and the richest of fields for the study of their rituals are of an infinite variety, despite the ever-present strain of fundamental likeness.

Not all the services are held in synagogue buildings. Yoshivas, school buildings, orphan asylums, homes for the aged, and the like, will serve as houses of prayer on the high holy days, just as they do on Sabbaths and other festivals. The chief synagogue of Jerusalem, known as the Hurvah, is an Old City landmark, not far from the Wailing Wall. This name for the latter, by the way, is distinctly un-Palestinian. The title used in the land itself is invariably "Kotel Wall" (of the Temple enclosure). Maeravi," that is, the "Western Wall." In the New City there is no outstanding Jewish house of prayer but one is at last in prospect. In April of this year a representative of the United Synagogue of America laid the cornerstone for the long projected Community Center on a site opposite the Keren Kayemeth building at the entrance to the suburb of Rehavia.

More than any synagogue, the Western Wall draws Jews on the high holy days, even though the holding of services there is hedged about with official restrictions, and the ram's horn may not be blown. All the old religious and national significances of that fragment of ancient masonry seem to stir in Jewish hearts during the Awesome Days, and hundreds and thousands come to it to pray and to meditate. It is not given a Jew to meditate at the Western Wall with a mind at peace, for the way to the Wall and the enclosure itself are heavily policed on Roah Hashona and Yom Kippur. An

Lewis' "It Can't Be Done" Best Single Safeguard Against Possible American Fascism

In view of the general acceptance by lay leaders and rabbis that the long term plan of attack for safeguarding security of the Jew in the United States should rest fundamentally on a consistent emphasis and glorification of democracy and democratic institutions, the publication of Sinclair Lewis' novel, "It Can't Be Done Here," must be considered as a major step in the furtherance of this program.

Written to show graphically and with all the force of America's most trenchant writer the horrors of fascism, the novel traces the evolution of the totalitarian state in the United States beginning with the elections of 1936. Senator Windrip is Hitler. Elected to the nation's highest office, he proceeds ruthlessly to suppress Congress and to outlaw the Supreme Court. Together with his two lieutenants, Windrip grafts all the evils of Hitlerism, including the GPU and the Concentration Camp, onto the American scene. In the three years following 1936, Doremus Jessup, courageous small-town editor, who resists the fascists, sees his son-in-law taken out and shot by the Minute Men (GPU) and is himself scheduled to be beaten with steel rods, dosed with huge quantities of castor oil and relegated to a Concentration Camp.

Justifying the novel's name, Lewis closes with revolution and the eventual disgorgement of fascism by the right-minded American citizenry.

Had members of the Joint Consultative Committee, composed of the American Jewish Congress, American Jewish Committee and the B'nai B'rith set themselves to wish for the one move that would be most effectual in squelching any attempt at a dictatorship in the United States, or the greatest single propaganda measure to warn the United States against the evils of fascism, they could not possibly have chosen other than what Lewis has done.

The novel is interesting, aside from its thesis.

Although put on sale only last Monday, reviewers are acclaiming it as Lewis' greatest work since "Dodsworth."

When the wide sale Lewis' novels enjoy is taken into consideration, the beneficial work of "It Can't Be Done Here," becomes fully apparent. It is possible that a million people will read the novel; how many more than that will hear it discussed in women's clubs; how many more will read reviews of it in magazines and newspapers.

In the rush of feeling of thanks to Lewis, the part played by his wife, Dorothy Thompson, should be remembered. Not only is it possible that Mrs. Lewis' reportorial excursions in Germany, and her subsequent lecture series, were indirectly responsible for her husband's choice of subject, but it is quite probable that she deliberately pointed out to him the potentialities in a novel on a question which daily fills the waking hours of most of the people of the world.

Should Shun Attempts To Mobilize Jewish Voters

In explaining the intolerable condition of Polish Jewry, B. Charney Vladek, president of the American ORT and general manager of The Jewish Daily Forward, blamed Polish Jews for forming what he termed a "political ghetto" and then declared that "such a condition couldn't occur in the United States."

"The Jews in Poland vote in elections as a separate unit, they vote as Jews for Jews. Given this representation the Polish government is afforded a 'moral excuse' for not further concerning themselves with Jewish problems."

Evidently Mr. Vladek forgets the attempt by self-styled Jewish leaders in Brooklyn a year ago to form the Brooklyn Jewish Democracy whose avowed purpose was to so unite the Jewish vote that Jewish politicians, school teachers, civil service employees, etc., would receive a greater share of appointments.

Is this not directly analogous to the Polish situation?

This would be impossible, Mr. Vladek pointed out, in the United States "where Jews vote as individuals, where the various parties court votes of the individual Jews, and where Jews are members of all parties."

When the attempt was made to regiment Brooklyn Jews into a coordinated voting unit, far-sighted American Jewish leaders, and groups, immediately raised such a howl that, although several meetings were called to effect organization, the scheme fell through. Even as it is, with no political organization branding themselves as strictly Jewish, politicians have a penchant for listing the Jewish citizenry as a Jewish voting bloc. As proof of this falacious political theory, witness the slates of the contending parties. When one group names a Jew for a prominent post, the second party attempts to offset this advantage by naming a Jew on their own ticket.

Admittedly there will always be a tendency for Jews to give first consideration to members of their own race when marking their ballots. Democracy is not the Utopian form of government, and social or economic connections are certain to guide the direction of many votes. In much the same way, the religious affiliation of a candidate whether he be Jew, Catholic or Protestant, will sway the minds of many voters.

With Vladek's warning before us, United States Jewry should ever be content to allow normal forces to determine allegiance of voters and shun, like a charged electric wire, any attempt to mobilize Jewish votes, as such, for any political purpose.

Invitation

Judge Anna Moskowitz Kross of New York received a wired invitation from the White House the other day signed by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. . . . Mrs. Roosevelt asked Judge Kross to address her class at the swanky Todhunter School. . . . The invitation is, believe it or not, for next March, and urges Judge Kross to act on it at once. . . .

Breaking

The Boycott

Warning to Jewish business men and others: Beware of Jewish salesmen for German firms who try to sell you Nazi goods by telling you that their families are starving in Germany. . . . We have it on the best of authority that this is part of a plan recently conceived and adopted by a large number of German firms to circumvent the anti-Nazi boycott which has cut such inroads into their business here. . . . The practice is reported especially common in the wine business. . . .

Odds and

Ends

Magistrate William O'Dwyer, presiding in Brooklyn Traffic Court during Rosh Hashonah, gave suspended sentences to more than 900 traffic violators who were fortunate enough to come up before him. . . . Talk about the New Year spirit. . . . The New Jersey Court of Appeals was ready to hand down its decision in the Hauptmann case on Yom Kippur. . . . But Justice Joseph Persky of Atlantic City declined to appear on the bench that day, so announcement of the decision was deferred. . . . Carl Laemmle, film magnate, refused to permit his son, Carl Junior, to wed Maxine Doyle. . . . She's not a tribeswoman, is the reason. . . . Leonard Lyons in the New York Post reports that a midtown hotel, not expecting it would make any difference to anybody, accepted sixteen Nazis from abroad as guests. . . . And when complaints began to pour in, the management, to get rid of the now unwelcome guests had to pay the entire party's fare to Detroit, including tickets for the World's Series. . . .

More

Ends

As quietly as he slipped into New York, one of England's important Jewish leaders and financiers left the other day to return to London. . . . His presence unmarked save by the few "in the know," Otto M. Schiff left on the Aquitania. . . . Although only 34 years old, an age which is accounted striping in the philanthropic field, Broker Benjamin J. Buttenweiser of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., is chairman of the brokers' division of the New York Federation's campaign. . . . He is charged with the task of seeing that his group raises one million dollars, the largest quota of any section in the city. . . . Ira A. (He calls himself Dory) Hirschmann, vice president of Saks Fifth Avenue, one of New York's biggest stores, is still in his early thirties. . . . He started his career not so long ago as an errand boy in the advertising department of Bamberger's (famous Newark department store). . . . Dory is also chairman of the board of trustees of the University in Exile. . . .

Nazis Laud

Jewish Film

There is a story behind "La Maternelle," the famous French film now showing in New York, a story almost as interesting as the film itself. We learned about it from Jean Benoit-Levy, French motion picture producer, before he sailed for home on the Normandie Wednesday. . . . He attended the New York opening of "La Maternelle," hailed by the press as one of the greatest pictures to come here from Europe. . . . In France and England, where the picture was first shown, it elicited rare notices from the most conservative periodicals. So much so, in fact, that he was approached to permit the film to be shown in Germany. . . . Whereby hangs a tale. . . .

It was December of last year when M. Benoit-Levy signed a contract to have "La Maternelle" shown in Germany, he told us in English richly garnished with French words and expressions. . . . Shortly afterward a representative of the company telephoned him. You see, the agent apologized, it was impossible to exhibit the film in Germany under the "non-Aryan" name Benoit-Levy. Would he mind if they changed it? He certainly would mind, he informed the agent angrily. He was born Benoit-Levy and intended to remain that despite any restrictions the Nazis might try to impose. . . . Later he was offered a sum of money above the contract figure to allow the German company to change his name. The representative who made the offer, M. Benoit-Levy said, was thrown out of the office. . . . There matters stood for a while. The picture was shown in Berlin, and the clippings of the reviews began to come in to the Paris office. Lo and behold, they all referred to the director of the picture as Jean Benoit. The Levy had been dropped. . . . The film director investigated and found the German distributors had eliminated the second half of the name without authority. He solicited the aid of the French Society of Authors and instituted suit. . . . A settlement was reached whereby the German distributors were obliged to scrap all the posters, publicity and screen announcements bearing the abbreviated name. And then and there blossomed forth in German motion picture houses, contrary to the approved practice of the Third Reich, this much-touted film bearing the strictly "non-Aryan" name, Levy. . . . But meanwhile the reviewers had seen the film. And such newspapers as Hitler's personal organ, Der Voelkischer Beobachter, and Propaganda Minister Goebbels' Der Angriff praised it to the skies. The Beobachter hailed its "sensitivity" and its fine depiction of children and lauded the "artistic atmosphere of the film." . . . The reviewer of Der Angriff described himself as "gripped by its greatness." He spoke of its "warmth and humanity," and ended up by calling the picture "a tremendous artistic conception such as we have never seen come to us from France." . . . When it became known that the director was Jewish, there was a marked falling off of enthusiasm in the German coordinated press. But the picture continued to draw huge crowds. Dolls were made in the image of the characters. The picture was a smash hit. . . . The courageous Zionist publication, Juedische Rundschau, added to the humiliation of the Nazi press by gently rubbing it in. The Rundschau, in a long featured editorial, cited previous statements in the Nazi press to the effect that the Jew was incapable of genuine artistic endeavor and then threw the reviews into their faces. . . . The Rundschau blamed the UFA, big German film company, for shortening the director's name. . . . We saw the opening of the picture in New York and can vouch for the fact it is one of the most masterful, sympathetic motion pictures of the year. . . .

SITUATION SAME

SALONICA (JTA)—The situation of the Jews remains unaffected by the proclamation of a monarchy in Greece.

Field Marshal George Kondylis, the new Regent, who is also Premier and Minister of Navy, declared in a statement, "We cannot forget that we owe the Jews our God." Premier Kondylis has been known for his pro-Jewish sentiment in the past.

At least one of the cabinet ministers, Theotokis Mandas, has repeatedly expressed appreciation of the Jews' contributions.

The monarchy was restored in Greece after a military coup d'etat, which removed President Zaimis from power.

OTTAWA, Ont. (JTA)—Jean Tissot, suspended detective and defeated Parliamentary candidate in this week's Dominion elections, was fined fifty dollars for criminal libel against A. J. Freiman, president of the Canadian Zionist Organization.

Tissot was found guilty on two charges of criminal libel.

HEALY BEFORE BRODSKY

NEW YORK (JTA)—Raymond Joseph Healey, self-styled "American Hitler," was arraigned again this week before Magistrate Louis B. Brodsky, who recently sentenced him to 60 days in the workhouse for disorderly conduct.

The charge was disorderly conduct once more. Ephraim Weisswasser, a Jewish newsstand dealer in Yorkville, charged Healey bought a newspaper from him and then, striking him with it, shouted:

"This is for you, you Jew!"

The dealer's brother went to his assistance, the complaint said, and both were set upon by eight men and four women who were with Healey. The brothers charged they were struck with blackjacks.

Magistrate Brodsky held Healey under $500 bail for examination.

"That's no setting sun," the boy answered. "That's our cheder (school) burning down."

Amendment Okeh Sought

Every thinking voter in Kentucky wants strict regulation of the liquor industry. This we do not have today and will not have in the future unless the voters of Kentucky, on November 5th, go out record as being against the present prohibition amendment to Kentucky's constitution, and, by so doing, reinstate Section 61 of our constitution as it read prior to enactment of the state-wide Prohibition Amendment by which that Section was repealed.

Section 61 provides as follows: "The general assembly shall, by general law, provide a means whereby the sense of the people of any county, city, town, district or precinct may be taken, as to whether or not spirituous, vinous or malt liquors shall be sold, bartered or loaned therein, or the sale thereof regulated."

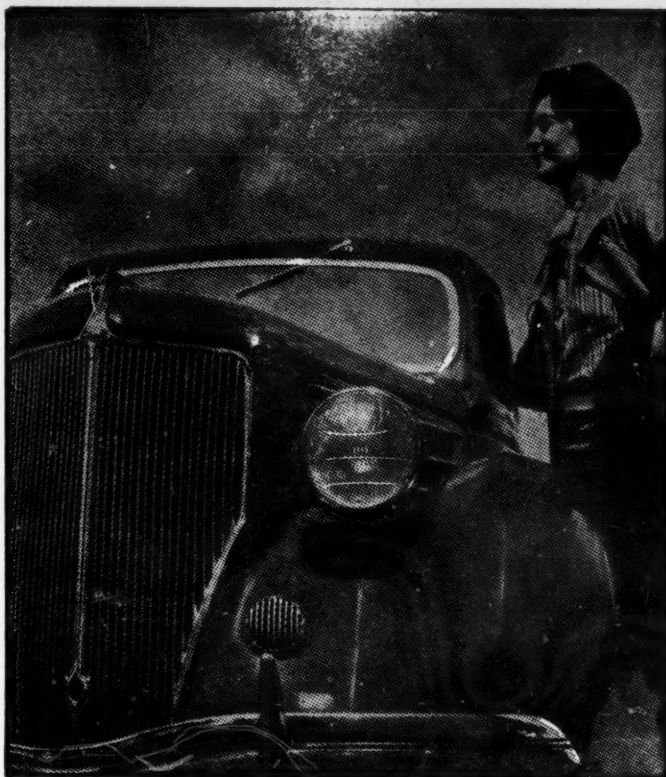

We have an intolerable situation in Kentucky. Actually, the Constitution prohibits the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor, except for sacramental, medicinal, scientific or mechanical purposes, yet liquor is being sold throughout the state under permits issued by the State Tax Commission. All of us know that the practical effect of the existing law is to have liquor stores in every community, whether desired by the people therein or not. For more than 15 months, this has been the situation. Distilled spirits are the source of large revenue to the state and because of this most of our citizens prefer to operate under the present conditions rather than attempt to enforce state-wide prohibition. Those communities who want to regulate the sale of liquor will not be able to do so unless Kentucky's prohibition law is repealed and Section 61 of the constitution automatically reinstated thereby.

The adoption of Amendment No. 1, on which the voters of Kentucky will be asked to express their wishes November 5, kills our present prohibition amendment and provides a means, through Section 61, by which each community shall pass upon the question of the sale of intoxicating liquor within its boundaries. The Court of Appeals of Kentucky, on Tuesday, October 7, 1935, handed down a decision declaring that local option elections, which have been called in 49 Kentucky counties, cannot be held because our present constitutional amendment repealed the constitutional right to have local option. The voter who believes that local option is preferable to existing conditions should vote "Yes" on Amendment No. 1.

To sum up the effect of passing the Constitutional Amendment No. 1 on November 5: First, the "Yes" vote repeals state-wide prohibition. Second, the "Yes" vote will restore the right of each county, city, town, district or precinct to determine for itself whether intoxicating liquor shall be sold therein. Third, it removes the present insurmountable barrier to effective control and regulation in localities preferring regulation to prohibition. The prohibition question has not yet been satisfactorily settled in Kentucky. The repeal of the national Eighteenth Amendment did not settle it. Ratification of Constitutional Amendment No. 1 will clear the way for constructive action in regulation and control of the liquor traffic and will restore local option. Citizens generally must be brought to a realization of the importance of this matter to the general welfare of the state, and must be aroused to the fact that Kentucky now must intelligently handle the liquor problem within her borders.

Here is a problem on which both

Absolve Longchamps

NEW YORK (Spl.)—An explanation of the use by Longchamps Chain Restaurants in this city of German china in their restaurants, and an announcement that this china was being replaced at considerable expense, was made today by the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League.

The announcement stated that the Longchamps restaurants in 1931 had made a five-year contract with a German china factory calling for special designs and patterns. Despite this contract, the restaurant was replacing their dishes with American products, the League declared.

"Wets" and "Drys" may meet on common ground. For every considerate prohibitionist who simply desires to prevent the sale of liquor in his own neighborhood and community as well as to help the cause of temperance, it is his duty to vote "Yes" on November 5th.

Repeal of our present prohibition amendment is clearly necessary for the restoration of local option which is the only way open for community prohibition and control.

In addition to clearing up this situation there is another consideration: where to find a new source for $3,600,000 or more in taxes every year—that is the problem which will face the State Legislature next year if Kentucky votes "No" on Repeal on November 5.

During the past year, the distilling industry has paid eight different forms of taxes to the State of Kentucky, four different forms to Counties and four to the Cities and Towns of this Commonwealth. The eight forms of taxes to the State alone totalled more than $3,600,000 last year, and will be appreciably greater during 1935, it is estimated.

In the event the distilling industry is driven from the State by an adverse vote in November, the Legislature will be forced to one of two alternatives: (1) To cut State expenses, including relief, by more than $10,000 per day; or (2) to raise an additional $3,600,000 per year by new levies on retail sales, real estate, or incomes.

Several prominent economists of the State point out also that increases in city, town and county

Drive Joiners Bad

"I believe we should always be on the lookout for good material for membership," Mr. Friedlander declared, "but a drive for members with high powered sales talks and stiff arm methods does not have a place in our Order."

taxes can be expected unless the State votes for Repeal in November. Licenses issued to liquor dealers during 1934 and 1935 have provided a very welcome relief to county and city tax offices, which have been able to meet increasing demands only because of the revenue available from the liquor industry.

In addition, the state, county and city governments have, during the past two years, been largely freed from the expense of trying to enforce well-nigh unenforceable prohibition laws. If the State votes "No" in November, increased taxes will be necessary not only to make up for the loss of the legitimate

Jerusalem Gets Water

JERUSALEM (JTA)—For the first time in recent history the residents of Jerusalem will have an adequate water supply when the Ras-el-Ain pipe line opens on or about Nov. 1, according to the report of Mayor Khelidi to the Municipal Council.

The demand is at first expected to be about 1,000,000 gallons daily. The present consumption of water is less than 750,000 gallons.

Two or three pumps will be used continuously, each pumping 800 gallons of water a minute. If the demand increases, there is room for installation of a fourth set of Diesel engines and pumps.

The profits of the first two months' operation of the new system are expected to defray the cost of scapping the present pipe lines.

Several hundred persons from New York, Philadelphia and surrounding cities attended the festival.

HOLLYWOOD—A most revealing little document—that booklet issued by the United Jewish Welfare Fund of Los Angeles. It contains all the contributors and their gifts for the 1935 campaign. The mute figures point to the movie colony's magnanimity without which the fund would have been nil. Cinematists, Gentiles as well as Jews, were by far the most generous donors. Among the toppers were the fifteen-hundred-dollar checks from Jack Benny, Sam Goldwyn, Louis B. Mayer, Irving Thalberg, and Jack Warner. Those giving one-o-o-oh! and more were Irving Berlin, Harry Cohn, Phil Goldstone, Al Jolson, David Selznick, Joseph Schenck, Ernst Lubitsch, and Myron Selznick.

VELVET LEADS PARADE

Stylish For Formal, Informal Wear

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

In every style display velvet is far in the lead. It appeared with wools for daytime wear, velveteen suits and dresses, formal and informal suits trimmed with a bit of lace or a frill, or in combination with the very beautiful plaid lame in costumes for both afternoon and evening.

Some of the new more formal velvet suits are fur-trimmed most elegantly. Velvet hostess gowns and negligees are also made a feature. As to velvet evening wraps they are shown in capes and three-quarter-length box coats regally trimmed with silver fox, white fox and ermine. The famous Doge's cape and hood from Vionnet of double velvet in burnt sienna and brown worn over a sepi brown velvet dress as shown in a recent exhibit presented the velvet theme at its loveliest.

In the New City it would never do to miss the Bokharan and Yemanite synagogues, with their Oriental rugs on floors and walls and divans around all sides of the room where unfamiliar chants and ritual charm with their dignity and quaintness. In the outer rooms sit the women folk catching what echoes they can of the services. These stately and picturesque women have no prayer books in their hands, one realizes suddenly, because they cannot read. But their Palestinian daughters, sitting beside them, can and do read their prayers in the Hebrew, which is the medium of their daily speech. (This literacy of theirs is an important step toward domestic and social equality with the men of the Oriental communities.

For those who wish to attend a modern Orthodox service for their personal devotions, there is the Jeshurun Congregation in the New City. Reform services are wholly unknown.

Rosh Hashona is celebrated in Palestine as in the Diaspora for two days. Hence there is much free time left for social intercourse. Everyone goes to visit everyone else and no lone stranger but is certain of a friendly cup of tea after a cordial "Hag Sameach" ("Happy Festival to you!") The main thoroughfares—Jaffa road, Ben Jehuda street, King George road—are crowded with promenaders from all the farflung quarters and suburbs of Jerusalem, and not a few out-of-town visitors and tourists.

Apart from visiting and promenading, there is the ever popular indoor sport of reading. Many a new book has been timed to appear with the advent of the New Year, the three Hebrew dailies all have published bulky holy day issues and the number of periodicals—literary, political, philosophical, scientific, technical—is legion.

Many will celebrate the outgoing of the festival by visiting Jerusalem's three cinema theatres: Yes, they have American talkies in Palestine, and English, and Polish, and Russian, and Austrian, and every other kind but German.

Yom Kippur is a sombre replica of Rosh Hashona with, of course, all the social features omitted. Everyone goes down to the Western Wall. It is as if, somehow, on this most solemn of all days in the Jewish year one cannot bear to stay away. The presence of the inevitable police guards cannot disturb the high mood of this hour. Some effort, however futile, must be made to sense (if to feel is beyond our powers) the "Dvekuth," the ecstasy of cleaving to the Divine, that our fathers knew and that is still the portion of Hassidim and Mekubballim here.

With the end of the fast, a beginning is made with the Succah, the booth of the Feast of Tabernacles. The waxing moon reveals to the Diaspora-born Jew why Succoth is a mid-month festival. It is, she says, so that "I, ha-Levannah, the White One, may grace the festival with the light of the full moon whose radiance far outshines all your petty human efforts to illumine the gloom of night." The booths are perched everywhere: upon flat roofs, between the nooks and crannies of the Old City's stone walls and cupolas; on the balconies that even the poorest tenement does not lack; in suburban gardens. There will be no rain so early in the autumn (or, should one say, so late in the summer? It is still summer, though the heat and the glare are more subdued now); and so it is safe to hang the booths with Oriental rugs and tapestries and embroideries, whose richness contrasts naively with the green of the overhead boughs and the homely red and yellows and purples of the vegetables and fruit festooned on roof and walls.

Only the first and the eighth days of the Succoth week are observed as synagogue holy days in Palestine; but the intervening "secular" days are pervaded with a holiday spirit. Their afternoons are official half-holidays, and many of the Oriental folk take the whole week as their autumn vacation.

How is all this leisure spent? To put the question seriously betrays stark ignorance of Palestine's resourcefulness in methods of enjoying itself. Are there not concerts and art exhibits and theatrical performances and "Tiyulim" (excursions and hikes) and conferences and lectures and mass meetings and athletic meets and youth rallies, all planned in honor of the festival? Is this not sufficiently varied fare for all and sundry, whatever their sex, age, social status, country of origin, political opinions, or views on the future of Palestine? Time can hang heavily on no one's hands

SALMON DISHES SOLVE QUICK MEAL PROBLEM

Among the oldest contributors to the quick meal problem is canned salmon. Before the days of the business woman housekeeper, quick meals were considered legitimate at house-cleaning time, and on days when there was a seamstress in the house and all the women in the family had to help so that she could turn out as many gowns as possible; then the men of the household just expected to have canned salmon.

Even today when there is a much greater variety of canned products on the market salmon is the same good old standby. On a warm evening a salmon mayonnaise is most appetizing especially if the salmon has been chilled. Minced pickle or olive may be added to the mayonnaise with perhaps a dash of onion juice. As a further filling garnish there may be halved hard-cooked eggs.

If the weather is cold creamed salmon in ramekins bread cases or patty shells may be used for the main course; a few sliced mushrooms, green peppers or bits of pimento will add flavor and color. Then there is that generally popular combination of soft bread crumbs, well seasoned, of course, and flaked salmon which may be baked in a casserole. It looks particularly attractive in an oven baking dish through which its delicate color shows. If you happen to have small shallow glass dishes which are known as "au gratin" you may prepare it in individual quantities if you like.

Salmon a la King

1 can mushrooms, cut in quarters
1 medium-sized onion, sliced
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
3 cups milk
2 egg yolks
1 pimento, chopped
1-2 teaspoon lemon juice
1-2 teaspoon paprika
Salt, pepper
1 pound can salmon, flaked

Cook the mushrooms and onions in the butter until tender and slightly browned. Add the flour and when well blended add the milk slowly and cook until thickened. Add the egg yolks beaten slightly. Add the seasonings and salmon and heat. Serve on buttered toast or in patty shells.

Scalloped Salmon

1 pound can salmon
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 1-4 cups milk
Salt, pepper
2 hard-cooked eggs
1-2 cup buttered bread crumbs

Shred the salmon and remove the bones. Melt the butter, add the flour and when well blended add the milk slowly, stirring constantly until thickened. Boil one minute. Season. Arrange a layer of salmon in the bottom of a greased baking dish, add some of the sauce, some sliced eggs, then another layer of salmon, and so forth, until all the ingredients are used. Cover the top with buttered bread and bake in a moderate oven, 375 degrees Fahrenheit, until the crumbs are brown.

event, as it is the end of the festival season. There are some who see in the singing and dancing that mark the day in Tel Aviv the ultimate expression of the Jew's joy in his Jewishness, of his pride in the achievements in Palestine. It is difficult to dissent from such a view. And yet, in Jerusalem there is something that is older and goes deeper, a something that is the core of our whole national being. Its signs may be read in the faces of the bearded, white-robed Hassidim who dance on Simhath Torah eve in Jerusalem's synagogues. Each man holds a scroll of the Law in his arms as he circles in the dance with his fellows. His eyes are closed, and his feet move gently in time to the beat of some rhythm in the solar solitude of that inmost cer-

Honor Lazaron

During the presidential elections of 1884, opponents of Grover Cleveland agitate against him on the almuic precept that "no seat hall be given among the Sanhedrin to one who has no children."

From Oct. 1, 1934 to Oct. 1, 1935, United States Jewry contributed $336,000 to the Jewish National Fund, Dr. Israel Goldstein, president of the American branch, reported. The sum is an increase of 68 per cent over the same period last year.

HARRY NEWMAN RETURNS TO GRID WARS

Played With Giants Against Boston Eleven

NEW YORK (Spl.)—Harry Newman, one of the greatest quarterbacks of the past decade, strode back to the football wars Sunday when he broke a previously-announced decision to retire and donned the moleskins for the New York Giants in their game with the Boston Redskins.

Although only in training for a few days, Newman demonstrated that he is practically in tip top condition, and gave notice that he has lost none of his old time powers. On one occasion Newman threw a perfectly timed 15-yard pass to Shaffer, and then followed it with a squirming 15-yard run around right end. Later in the game Newman heaved a pass to Shaffer again, this time for 20-yards.

Newman's sudden decision to play ball this year resulted in a clean bill of health given him by his physician. Badly injured in the championship playoff last year, Newman considered his playing days over. He was down in bed for weeks while doctors administered to a fractured vertebrae.

In 1933 Newman led the league in passing, completing 30 per cent of his tosses. Last year he completed 33 of 91 aeriels and also gained 503 yards in ten games. In both seasons he scored 76 points

Olympiad Vexes U.S.

NEW YORK (Spl.) — United States' participation in the Berlin Olympics became front-page news as reports from all sections of the nation indicated the seriousness of the fight next month when A.A.U. officials meeting here decide whether to enter the Olympiad.

Newest developments are:

Brig. Gen. Charles H. Sherrill, American member of the International Olympic Committee, takes under advisement a letter from the Committee on Fair Play in Sports asking his support of the movement for withdrawal of American athletes from the 1936 Olympiad, declaring that Jewish interference will bring a wave of anti-Semitism in the United States.

A bill is introduced in the Massachusetts Legislature urging the A.A.U. to frown on American participation and suggesting that other states take similar action.

John Haynes Holmes declares for withdrawal.

The Board of Aldermen of New York refer to the Aldermanic Committee on Rules a resolution introduced asking the American Olympic Committee to refuse American participation.

The American Federation of Labor in convention in Atlantic City passes a resolution urging "all his protest against participation, American sport organizations be prevailed upon not to participate in the 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin."

"King Kong" Klein Stars For N.Y.U.

NEW YORK (Spl.)—There's a Jewish football player here at New York University this season who has been crashing the headlines of New York papers with uncanny regularity of late and who should be near the top when the time is ripe for all-American considerations. He is none other than "King Kong" Klein, although his parents named him Irwin. Irwin plays a tackle for the Violets.

"King Kong" stands six feet one inch and weighs 202 pounds. When he attended Yonkers high school, he was named all-county tackle. An amiable giant, he is a basketball star also, and because of his noteworthy ability plus a neanderthalic appearance, he has received considerable notice in the papers. He is tolerant, however and when interviewed recently said, "Yeah, they give me funny names, but, I dont give a damn, I like to play ball."

"King Kong is trying for the masters degree in physical education and is particularly partial to orthopedics as expounded in the clinics.

chairman of the Olympic organization committee answers why no Jewish athletes will be on the German Olympic team.

Jeremiah T. Mahoney, president of the A.A.U., answers Dr. Lewald's assertions.

The Rev. Charles S. McFarland, general secretary emeritus of the Federal Council of the Church of Christ in America, in repeating his protest against participation, declares Germany is barring her Jewish athletes from competition.

The Indiana A.A.U. instructs its delegates to vote against participation.
